We use cookies, log files, pixel tags, web beacons, scripts, eTags device IDs and similar files or technologies (“Cookies”) to collect and store information about your device and use of our Website. You can find out more about Cookies and how to control them below.

This Cookies Policy is incorporated into and forms part of Terms of Service. Any terms used in this Cookies Policy will have the same meaning as the equivalent defined terms in the Terms of Service, unless otherwise defined in this Cookies Policy or the context requires otherwise. If you do not accept the use of these Cookies, please disable them using the instructions below, by following the 'opt-out' links provided below or by changing your settings so that Cookies from our Website cannot be placed on your device.

1. What is a Cookie?

Cookies are text files containing small amounts of information which are downloaded to your browser or device when you visit a certain web address. Cookies are then sent back to the originating web address on each subsequent visit, or to another web address that recognises that Cookie. Cookies are widely used in order to make websites work, or to work more efficiently, as well as to provide information about how the website is used.

Cookies do lots of different jobs, like letting you navigate between pages efficiently, remembering your preferences, and generally improving the user experience. Cookies may tell us, for example, whether you have used the website before or whether you are a new user.

Cookies can remain on your device for different periods of time. Some Cookies are 'session Cookies', meaning that they exist only while your browser or the application is open. These are deleted automatically once you close your browser or application. Other Cookies are 'permanent Cookies', meaning that they survive after your browser or application is closed.

They can be used by the Services to recognise your device when you open and use the Services again.

2. What types of Cookies do we use and how do we use them?

We use performance, analytics and tracking Cookies on our website as set out more fully in this table:

Type of Cookie	What it does	Duration
Essential	Essential is required and can't be disabled, that is crucial for Umso's sites security and functionality and we do not store any identifiable personal information.	1 year
Functionality	Functionality helps give your visitors a better user experience.
Performance & Analytics	Performance & Analytics helps collect information regarding interaction with your site, traffic and measurement to help better you improve your site.
Targeting & Advertising	Targeting & Advertising helps better deliver marketing content and customized ads.

3. How to control or delete Cookies

You have the right to choose whether or not to accept Cookies. To opt-in to or out of Cookies, please click on our banner which will pop-up on your first visit to our website. However, please note that if you choose to refuse Cookies you may not be able to use the full functionality of our website.

You can update your preferences at any time - most devices (in the case of mobile applications) and browsers (in the case of web apps and pages) allow you to change your Cookie settings. These settings will typically be found in the “options” or “preferences” menu of your browser. The following links provide information about how to manage cookies on popular browsers, otherwise you should use the “Help” option in your browser for more details.
